

Observations. Subject described acute pain in ribcage and hips, together with difficulty breathing. Pronounced edema was observed throughout torso, with swollen regions expanding rapidly. Subject suffered cardiac arrest, followed immediately by the bursting of edema. Subject's abdominal interior appeared to be composed entirely of fungal tissue, and released large masses of filamentous spores. Laboratory placed on lockdown.